

CV Giuseppe Inturri

He took his master degree in Transport Engineering in 1986 and PhD degree in Transport Technics and Economics in 2000.

Today is Associate Professor of the Electric Electronic and Computer Engineering Department of the University of Catania, where he hold the class of Fundamentals of Transport at the Civil and Environmental Engineering degree course. He is member of the board at the PhD course "Assessment and mitigation of urban and territorial risks",

He is also Rector's delegate for Mobility Management and for the Italian Network of Universities for the Sustainable Development, where is deputy national coordinator of the Mobility Team.

His main research interests are in transport planning, sustainable mobility, planning for accessibility and demand responsive transport. He published more 60 indexed papers, with 650 citations and h index 16.

He has been scientific responsible of many contracts for mobility plans and feasibility studies of transport infrastructures.

He was also in charge as Technical Manager of Circumetnea Railway Company, participating at the project of the metro line.